“ I invite viewers to join me on this journey through Johannesburg’s labyrinthine streets”.

In the heart of South Africa lies a city of shimmering dreams and relentless ambitions, a city that has lured countless souls from far and wide, seeking to unearth their fortunes and forge their destinies. Johannesburg, often referred to as the “City of Gold,” stands as an emblem of opportunity, a rite of passage for all who dare to tread its streets, a city that pulses with the energy of those who strive to make their mark.

Johannesburg, a rite of passage for anyone yearning to make their way in the world, has been my source of inspiration. It is a city where one’s mettle is tested, where resilience is nurtured, and where the pursuit of success is a journey as remarkable.

In my recent mixed media works, I delve deeper into the intricate fabric of this urban landscape, vividly capturing its ever-shifting physical contours and the pulsating life of its inhabitants. Johannesburg, a city of gold, is not just a place; it’s a transformative experience, a rite of passage that shapes those who dare to embrace its challenges and possibilities...

My works are an invitation to immerse yourself in the magnetic allure of Johannesburg,

Themba Khumalo creates work that reflects the social, political, and spiritual landscape in current South Africa, and the understanding of land as identity. These renditions portray pieces of land as witnesses to the dispossession, illegal occupation as protest, loss of hope and yet through the artist depicts land as refuge, a space of faith and healing.

Khumalo's work engages with issues that one faces in the dynamic and temperamental city of Johannesburg; the beauty as well as the challenges encountered on a daily basis. He also acknowledges the foundation and direction of home; "I am who I am because of my upbringing" says Khumalo.
